

Once Upon A Woods.

By Tyler and Grammy

A Storybird
Once Upon A Woods.

By

By Tyler and Grammy

Illustrated by

Imaginings

Published on March 20, 2014

© Storybird 2014. All rights reserved. Not for resale.

Once upon a woods there was a boy named Airhead he was an archer. He was going out to hunt when he saw a mountain lion.
He saw it through the woods.

He ran quietly through the woods. The mountain lion heard him so he stopped. Then the mountain lion climbed on top of a rock.

The mountain lion growled at him. Then the archer ran back to his boat. He started to sail away.

By the time Airhead got home it was already night, but something scarred him so he went to see what it was.

But soon he figured out it was just a bird so he made the bird go out an he went to bed.

When he woke up he went on a walk. Right outside his house was a tree. This was the start of the woods.

The first thing he saw was a snake in a tree. He barely saw it because it was blending in with the leaves.

As he walked on he decided to take the bridge over the river. He knew the river would soon hit the sea.

He walked to the mountains and saw a little town in the valley.

The sky was growing dark so he decided to head home.

He knew he was close to home when he passed the old church.

He was very happy to be home but he had had a nice walk through the lovely woods.

The world needs your stories

